Why a Corporate Executor?

The creation of the institution called the Trust Company had for its purpose the providing of an agency to handle, competently and honestly, trusts of all kinds, including those trusts that come to being after the death of persons of property.

Individual executors, administrators, trustees and guardians had frequently proved incompetent, sometimes dishonest. The legislation which created the corporate trustee made the handling of trusts a business, and at the same time surrounded the trust company's dealings with safeguards against maladministration. The desirable qualities in the Executor or Trustee are experience and honesty; these the Trust Company has.

Our booklet, "Why a Corporate Executor" tells briefly and clearly the advantages of Cor-porate over Individual Execu-tors. It is free, on request.

ATE ALL THE ROLLS IN SIGHT-THREE

Vienna (via Venice), March 26 .-The most striking effect of the eight months of war on Vienna has been the banishment of the roll which has made the Austrian capital famous. The Café Imperial on rare occasions with late coffee still serves white rolls. The other evening three were brought to a party of six, just as the party was finishing the meal, and an American girl, who came late, ate all three. The waiter's voice was full of real pathos as he pointed out the girl to the manager and said: "That, sir, is the fraulein who has eaten three of our rolls. I can't understand how she dared."
